“Studying sociology has given me the chance to explore my options of what I want to do in the future. The variety of topics mean I have learnt a lot about the world I live in and how different people experience it in very different ways. We regularly discuss events that happen in the news and I feel more confident in explaining these because of what I have learnt in Sociology. It has allowed me to look at many different university courses and keep a broad view of what I could do in my future.” Amie
